Deputies Arrest Man in Domestic Abuse Case

On Wednesday, December 11, Leon County Sheriff's Office (LCSO) deputies responded to a residence in the 2700 block of Cathedral Drive in reference to a domestic disturbance. A neighbor called 911 after witnessing 31-year-old Peter Davis choking the victim, dragging the victim out of a vehicle and shoving the victim into his residence. The witness was alerted by hearing screaming and then observing from a window inside their residence. While on the call to 911, the witness eventually observed Davis drive away in his vehicle.

When deputies arrived on scene, they discovered no one was inside the residence in question. LCSO investigators tracked Davis' potential whereabouts and also learned that the victim had an active protective order against Davis.

Due to Davis being a Georgia resident, deputies alerted law enforcement in surrounding counties to be on the lookout for both Davis and the victim. The following day, LCSO investigators, with the help of the Capital Region Real Time Crime Center (RTCC), located Davis and assisted the Florida Highway Patrol on a traffic stop of his vehicle.

"This is another example of our ALLin mantra at work," said Sheriff Walt McNeil. "The RTCC continues to be an amazing asset to law enforcement throughout our region. In addition, the citizen who witnessed the abuse and called 911 is a great example of 'See Something Say Something.'"

Davis was arrested and taken to the Leon County Detention Facility.
